Death of Mrs. Abbie Howe.
Mrs. Howe died Thursday afternoon at five o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Emma Mann, after ten weeks of constant suffering from the results of a broken hip, caused by falling. She had lived in Norway thirty-four years and had a wide circle of friends who loved and respected her for her many beautiful qualities.
She was a native of Wiscasset, and resided there, and later in Milltown, Maine. She married Abner Hill of Milltown, N. B., and lived in that town several years, and until the death of Mr. Hill. Later she married Edwin W. Howe, who was a prominent merchant of Norway, for several years, the predecessor and for a short time partner of Chas. F. Ridout, and then did business where A. J. Nevins now is. Mr. Howe died in 1890. Mrs. Howe leaves a daughter, Mrs. Emma Mann, widow of Walter E. Mann. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Caroline E. Angell, recently pastor of the Universalist church, of which Mrs. Howe was a member, and burial was beside Mr. Howe in the Pine Grove Cemetery.

Both the young people will be missed greatly in social circles in Norway this winter. The trip will be made from Boston by boat, and if on some of these glorious fall days will be a most charming sail.
Cards have been received here announcing the marriage in Boston on Wednesday of P. B. Darr, who was employed in the Advertiser office about two years, leaving us in the fall of 1902, and Mrs. Edith L. Hall of South Paris. Mr. and Mrs. Darr left immediately after the wedding for Washington, D. C., where he has a good position and where they will make their home.
On Wednesday, the 21st, Mrs. Hattie Harmon and Carl Harmon went to Gorham, N. H., for a visit. Friday, they joined a party among whom was Mrs. S. M. Bennett of Norway Lake for a trip to the summit of Mount Washington. They rode to the Half-way House then walked the remainder of the way. It was a remarkably clear day and the view from the summit was superb. It was a fine trip and one long to be remembered.

THE NORWAY ADVERTISER

(OXFORD COUNTY, ME.)

NUMBER 40. SEPTEMBER 30, 1904, NORWAY AND SOUTH PARIS, MAINE. VOLUME XXXV

Home for Aged Women.

At a meeting of the stockholders of association held Saturday it was decided to put a steam heating boiler in the Home. L. M. Longley has the contract to furnish, place and pipe it, and it is certain that the work will be well done, adding greatly to the comfort of the Home and making it more easy of care through the winter.
In conversation with one of the principal officers of the association, she said, "You have no idea of the difficulties we have had to overcome and we feel greatly pleased that the past year has been so successful. There has been much sickness which has added greatly to our burden. Still we have managed to keep the Home open for a year, to keep running expenses paid, and supplies on hand, though some time it has not been just how we were going to do it, and we feel highly gratified that we have been so successful."
The people of Norway and South Paris have done all that we could ask them to, have responded promptly and well to our call, and have made possible our success. We wish the remainder of the county would do as well. While there have been contributions which have helped us and for which we are grateful, from people and societies over the county, yet we feel that more might and ought to come from outside these two towns. It is a county home, not a Norway and South Paris institution, for the women who are in the Home come mostly from other portions of the county. I wish some one with the ability and knowledge could travel the county and tell people what we are doing and what we need.

Certainly the Home deserves a better and more certain support from outside these two towns. A beginning has been made, and a successful one, and individuals and societies are contributing to its aid. Each church and religious society, and each secret organization with benevolent principles has been asked to contribute to the Home, contributing yearly or more often. Whatever may be given will be well used, and any surplus put into a reserve fund against a time of need.
A recent donation to the Home came from Norway through the kindness of Mrs. T. S. Barnes.

Norway Municipal Court.
On Wednesday was held a civil suit of Benjamin J. Russell vs. E. Adolphus Harlow, both of South Paris, on a disputed account. Harlow claims that he notified Russell not to trust any member of his family except himself for goods, and that this bill was subsequent to such notice. Russell denies that such notice was given. Wilson & Gray for plaintiff, Wright & Wheeler for defendant. Decision is not yet rendered.

Norway Methodist Service.
Harvest Day at the Methodist church last Sabbath proved a great success. Notwithstanding the hard rain Saturday afternoon, large numbers of the church, fruit, jelly, etc., were brought and the committee of the W. H. M. society decorated the church very beautifully and elaborately. The value including eight dollars in cash was estimated at $25.00. Sabbath morning was beautiful for the occasion and a large audience listened with great interest to an earnest sermon from Pastor Brooks from Prov. 3:3, "Honor the Lord with thy substance, and with the first fruits of all thine increase." The music was selected for the occasion and ably rendered by the choir. The poor, sick and shut-ins have since been very generously remembered in the town, and a good supply sent to the Deaconess Home in Portland. Mr. Brooks is much pleased with the ready response of his people.
Next Friday evening will be general class meeting at M. E. vestry. All members and probationers are invited.
Epworth League social and jug breaking will be held at the M. E. parsonage, next Saturday evening. Refreshments will be served and a good time is expected.
Next Sabbath will be Rally Day for the Methodist church and Sunday school. Everybody who does not attend elsewhere is intended. The services will commence at 9:30 a. m. with an old-fashioned Methodist love feast, sermon at 10:30, followed with Communion, then Sunday school rally.
Mr. Brooks will preach at Fore Street at 2:30 p. m. next Sunday.

Rev. A. H. Ericsson will preach in G. A. R. hall next Sabbath afternoon at 2:30 p. m. Everybody invited.
E. E. Andrews started for Iowa, Wednesday night at 11 o'clock. He and Mrs. John F. Swain went with him and will stop at St. Louis and visit the World's Fair.
The Radcliffe Shoe Co. and the Symonds Shoe Co. are increasing business rapidly, and the winter's run promises to be the largest in the history of the shoe manufacturing business in the town.
Cyrus Woodsam had a squash vine come up in a hill of cucumbers and he let it grow. This fall he harvested 132 pounds of Hubbard squash from this one stalk. Therefore from one squash seed, 132 pounds was raised. The largest weighed 24 pounds and there were seven in number.

EAST WATERFORD.
Driven out of Business.
There has been quite an excitement in regard to a youngster who bought a sick hog for a trifle and commenced selling her out among his customers at low figures, but one who saw the act made haste to warn the public before great harm was done, though we learn that one family was quite sick. No action has been taken in the matter except to drive him out of the business.
Jennie Stevens is said to be gaining slowly but is very low and feeble.
Mrs. Emma Smith of Norway paid a flying visit to Aunt Kate Martin, Sunday.
The Bolster's Mills Telephone company are setting the poles for their wire, the use of which to each family will be furnished at fourteen dollars so long as required, one year.
Will Emery returned to Rumford Falls Sunday. Monday, he commenced on two big brick blocks for Boston parties. The completion of the job will consume the entire winter. Mrs. Emery and her little son are stopping with her mother, Mrs. Andrews at Disbectown.
Iva Haggert was home from Portland over Sunday.
The sidewalk in front of N. Dayton Bolster & Co.'s store is being relaid.

BETHEL.

More About the Fair.
The coming fair at Riverside Park, Oct. 4 and 5, is destined to be equal to, if it does not exceed any former one ever held in Bethel. The horse and stock department are in the hands of competent committees who are interesting the people particularly in those branches of the show. Dr. F. B. Tuell, with a good corps of assistants, has charge of the hall department, where a good display of farm and garden, fruit and dairy, and household furnishings, etc., etc., are always in abundant display. The department of fruit alone should be one of the finest ever seen here. Fruit was never more abundant and never better colored than now, and although it has been somewhat damaged by the freeze, yet ample quantities are all right from which fine specimens can be furnished. Bring them all along.
There will be half fare on G. T. R. during the fair, Oct. 4 and 5.

Bethel Corn Shop.
H. F. Webb Co. has packed 31,191 gallon cans of corn at Bethel this season. That would mean about 10,000 cans put up in the usual way. This company made the first successful trial last season, putting up 9000 gallon cans. This season their entire cut is put up in gallon cans. S. C. Whitman, Halifax, N. S., is the managing agent and foreman of the business here; and it is through his skill that this process has been a success. They have employed 43 hands 9 days in this season's work, not including the huskers. 87 acres were put in by the farmers, but about 10 were destroyed by the freeze. Some farmers received as high as $70 per acre. The general average was very satisfactory, and no complaint. It is with much satisfaction that this process of packing corn has become a success here and the management in and about the premises is conducted in a straightforward, satisfactory and orderly way.

Charles Mason has been improving for several weeks.
Eli F. Stearns was in Berlin, N. H., on business, Wednesday.
Carpenters are very busy at the present time in our village.
Mrs. Letitia C. Russell is staying with Mrs. Burbank on Railroad street for the present.
Some varieties of apples are damaged by the recent hard freeze, while other kinds do not show any bad effects therefrom.
Sheriff Penley was in Portland, Monday, as witness for the government in a case on trial for desertion from the regular army.
Mrs. Addie Brook of Ashland, Mass., and Mrs. Adeline Edwards and daughter of Caribou are visiting her mother, Mrs. Maria Farwell.
In the 250 class at Maine State Fair, American Law was first in three out of four, Miss Strike, Prof. W. R. Chapman's brown mare winning second. Fastest time 2:23 1/4.
James Smith and his mother have moved from the Evans place where they have lived for several years. Martha Evans is soon to return and occupy her house on Mason street, lately vacated by Mr. Smith.
A. S. Chapman, E. W. Barker and H. C. Barker attended the funeral of their cousin, Chas. A. Ingalls, in Shelburne, N. H. Mr. Ingalls passed away in Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 17, and his body was brought here to be laid in the family lot in Shelburne.

Midvale Interval.
Daniel Kimball is with Mr. Buck on Swan hill.
The late freeze has injured apples and nearly spoiled some varieties.
John Kimball and family of Dover, N. H., are at his parental home here.
A. M. Carter, esq., spent last Sabbath at his old home with his relatives.
Dina McAllister of Lovell has been in this vicinity selling cranberries.
A. H. Packard and wife and daughter Metchel were at the Maple and Pine farm on a short visit with his sister, Mrs. R. J. Coffin.
Mrs. Annie Goodwin, who has been here and at Bethel Hill visiting relatives, has returned to her home in Kingston, N. H.
The woodbine leaves on Maple and Pine farm house are frost bitten and drooping, which a few days ago looked so beautiful.
A letter from Tugus says the old soldiers there are dying fast. Our old patriots, let us give them the best while we have them with us. Soon all of them will be among the true and honored in that spirit land, marching to the music of the Celestial band among those whose captain is the Lord our King and of whose kingdom there shall be no end and where peace shall reign eternally.

GROVER HILL.
Mrs. Obiah Bennett is ill with a cold. Fine weather since the equinoctial storm.
Wm. Bragg of Errol, N. H., was in this section, Saturday.
Mr. and Mrs. Horne of Milan, N. H., are at Peter Wheeler's.
Gwendolyn Stearns, who is teaching in the Wight district, Milan, was at home over Sunday.

Autumn.

Long, long have I waited thy coming, cool autumn. With a song in my heart to welcome thee. Have watched for thy banners upon the tall maples. To tell me most truly thy presence was near. This morning I heard thee come over the mountains. Singing and rustling the tall trees among. And thy bright waving banners, crimson and golden. On long maple branches in beauty are hung. I must shout and nuzzle as I bid thee welcome. Welcome to autumn, the queen of the year. With ripe mellow fruit, and cool mountain breezes. And bright sunny days that give the heart cheer.

Wealth Wisely Used Doth Bless.

Bills faces the land to hapless fills a prey.

Where wealth accumulates and men decay.

GOLDSMITH.

Wealth wisely placed rare blessings may dispense.

Where the dread lines of poverty repose; Reclaim a desert to an Eden fair, Reclaim a waste to a garden of roses; To bridge the seas, earth's treasures to unfold, Or heights, of depths, and mines of purer gold; To friendly ties create wealth and peace; That each may profit at the other's hands; To educate a race in heathen lands; To virtue's way by good and willing hands; To pierce the air, converse across the seas, To glide in air wherever man may please; These source seeks some mystery to solve, To seek the new theories to evolve; To scale the mountains, penetrate the earth For lost or hidden forms that once had birth. All these, and more good credit we'll award To wealth where virtue rules for man's reward. But wealth creating opulence and pride To scorn the weak and poverty deride. Serve to enthral and drive to blind despair The man who seeks to serve with kindly care. The wife, and child, and all who may depend Upon his strength and purpose to defend, 'Till reason fails, 'till then he seeks to hide His sorrow in the grave's suicide. For greater evils here we may recall, Of wars remote, and nearer may befall, For spoil, where men strive with kindred, A brother man for plunder or for pay. Strange scenes are these to raise a hand in aid, For Christian man to seek a brother's life; A barb rose from a barbed rose age, For love of gold, in blind and desperate rage. Great grief entail in each and every age, While men applaud the poet and the sage. Buckfield, Me. GILBERT THORX.

How to Build a Log Cabin.

Comfortable Home for Your Summer Outing, with Ax, Saw and Augur. Just the Sort of a Place to Enjoy It While Getting Health and Employment Far From the Cares and Work of School and Business.

Now the fall season is here and it is a good cool time to prepare the work for the next camping season's pleasure, people naturally who can afford to follow their desire to get into the woods and get near to Nature's heart, think of what they would like for a permanent camp. Many, after pondering on the subject, have decided that a log cabin would be the most appropriate thing, but from lack of knowledge as to how this building is constructed have failed to put up slab houses and houses of sawn timber, and the work of hauling the material to the sites selected has almost invariably proved to be a long job, attended with hard labor and much expense. When this summer camp has been finished and they got settled in it, a visit to a genuine log cabin will make them discontented with their outfit. They will then wish that they had secured the services of some woodsman and had a log cabin built from the native material, had been made and made way for the camp they did put up.

Now, as two is about as big a crowd as ever ought to go camping or into any other venture, a log cabin big enough for their comfort need not be a very expensive structure. Any one with a natural inclination to work with tools, can, if so disposed, put up a comfortable log cabin and do it inside of a week without very much trouble, if they will only go to work right.

A house can be built with an ax, saw and augur, that will be warm, dry and as comfortable as one of limited means could desire.

First, select a pleasing site on the banks of some stream or lake. Choose a level spot, if possible, where the ground falls away on one or more sides, so that the site will be dry, and yet near enough to good water for convenience.

For a shack to accommodate two or three who pull together pretty generally, build it twelve feet square or twelve by fourteen. This dimension is inside measurement, and in getting out the logs cut them about thirty inches over the length desired for inside measurements of side and end. This will give ample margin for making the corner, and, if possible, always get straight logs, that taper slowly and that are about ten inches through at the butt.

If your logs differ in size put the largest logs on the ground corner and leave the lighter ones for the top work.

Having got the site selected and the logs cut and ready to put up, take two of the largest logs, that are cut for end logs, and after digging a trench so as to set them in the ground about half their diameter, exactly parallel to each other, distance inside is that required for the inside measurement.

Then take your ax and chop in on each side of the log at each end a shallow cut so that when the two cuts are completed the upper edge of the cut will be sharp and on the center of the log something like a triangle.

These cuts are to be made at each end of the two logs that have been set in the ground as the end sills of the proposed cabin.

Then roll the end logs up on these and get them at right angles so that you may start your cabin on the square. Next, measure the width of the triangle cut in the under log at a depth that will allow the upper log, when notched to fit it to rest on the ground solidly after it is notched and rolled into place. This notch should be just wide and deep enough to allow the top log to rest loosely on the triangular cut that was made in each of the under logs.

When the first pair of side logs are out and in place you have the ground plan of the cabin started. If you are using logs with the bark on take an ax and score the inside face of the logs, so that it can be heven giving a face of four or five inches.

These side logs are then to be cut in a manner similar to that triangular cut made on the first logs laid down. This is done by using the log as a level stick, thus forming a bed for the look notch that is to be cut in the log that rests upon it to lay in.

Work each corner of logs in this manner until the walls of the cabin are carried to the desired height and when you lay your cabin walls, have plenty of moss such as can be pulled in most any cold spring swamp that is shaded by overgreen timber.

Be sure and carry your walls up to at least six feet in height and when laying each course place the butt or large end of that log over the small end of the log that is directly beneath it, as by so doing the walls will be carried up practically level.

When the end logs of the course next to the top ones are cut have them cut of such length as to allow them to project at least three feet on each side beyond the rest of the wall.

The side logs of the top course should be allowed to project at the front some six or eight feet so that a porch can be easily constructed.

These side logs that project will serve as the first pair of ridge poles for the roof saddle.

Settle the pitch that you want your roof to have and cut your gable end timbers to suit.

The first log of the gable should be set closely between the last course of side logs.

Bore this log for four pins an inch and a quarter in diameter and let the augur go through the log into and half through the lower log.

Split the bottom end of the pins that you drive into these holes and insert a wedge in the split. When these pins are driven home the wedge on striking the bottom of the hole will expand the pin so that it will not draw out.

These gable logs are pinned thus to keep them in place should the ground heave under the influence of frost.

When the gable logs are in place to the height required for the second pair of poles that constitute the roof saddle, cut these poles the same length as the first pair and roll them up into place. Bore and pin them to the gable logs at each end of the house. Fit a log at each end between this pair of saddle poles and pin in place.

A big log cut with the required bevel suit the roof pitch placed on this at each end and firmly pinned will complete the gables of the building.

The house is now ready for the roof and it can be covered by poles. If round poles are used peel them, as the worms will not work in them as they will if the bark is left on. A pole roof makes a good roof, but a better one can be made by taking straight grained logs of six inches in diameter and splitting them lengthwise through the middle. This can be easily done by the use of the ax and wooden wedges.

When laying a pole roof, whether of round or split poles, always put every other pole butt end up so that the roof will be level and splitting them lengthwise through the middle. This can be easily done by the use of the ax and wooden wedges.

When laying a pole roof, whether of round or split poles, always put every other pole butt end up so that the roof will be level and splitting them lengthwise through the middle. This can be easily done by the use of the ax and wooden wedges.

of that log over the small end of the log that is directly beneath it, as by so doing the walls will be carried up practically level.

When the end logs of the course next to the top ones are cut have them cut of such length as to allow them to project at least three feet on each side beyond the rest of the wall.

The side logs of the top course should be allowed to project at the front some six or eight feet so that a porch can be easily constructed.

These side logs that project will serve as the first pair of ridge poles for the roof saddle.

Settle the pitch that you want your roof to have and cut your gable end timbers to suit.

The first log of the gable should be set closely between the last course of side logs.

Bore this log for four pins an inch and a quarter in diameter and let the augur go through the log into and half through the lower log.

Split the bottom end of the pins that you drive into these holes and insert a wedge in the split. When these pins are driven home the wedge on striking the bottom of the hole will expand the pin so that it will not draw out.

These gable logs are pinned thus to keep them in place should the ground heave under the influence of frost.

When the gable logs are in place to the height required for the second pair of poles that constitute the roof saddle, cut these poles the same length as the first pair and roll them up into place. Bore and pin them to the gable logs at each end of the house. Fit a log at each end between this pair of saddle poles and pin in place.

A big log cut with the required bevel suit the roof pitch placed on this at each end and firmly pinned will complete the gables of the building.

The house is now ready for the roof and it can be covered by poles. If round poles are used peel them, as the worms will not work in them as they will if the bark is left on. A pole roof makes a good roof, but a better one can be made by taking straight grained logs of six inches in diameter and splitting them lengthwise through the middle. This can be easily done by the use of the ax and wooden wedges.

FOR SALE.
MY STAND ON HILLSIDE AVENUE,
within a few rods of the County Buildings, and one of the best locations in South Paris, the view being grand.
The buildings are new and thoroughly built in every particular, nothing but the best material being used in their construction. The house contains eight rooms with both room and one of the best cemented cellars. The house is supplied with city water. The lot is large and contains apple, pear and plum trees. This place is certainly desirable.
The house and stable both being built upon honor. I will sell this place for a very reasonable price. For further

A Reply.
To W. W. MAXIM.
Your words of wisdom and advice,
Your words of gold without alloy,
With few exceptions, really nice.
But oh, a drum I will not be,
When anyone might want and drub,
I rather be a last week's "wash"
A soaking in a leaky tub.
I'll never be "something awful loud"
Although I often "make things hum,"
I cannot be a thunder cloud,
Although at times I look it some.
I'd be an item" not at all!
I rather be a "fine-tooth" comb
That calmly catches great and small,
For thus I'd be the light of house.
I would not be a telephone.
A slave for every chattering tongue
Unable for to answer back,
I rather be a sour string.
I would not be a honey-comb,
(I'm sweeter as I am forsooth)
Nor yet a hard worked busy-bee;
I'd rather be a "sawyer's tooth."
I would not be a printer's "stick,"
With "type" and "form" thrown in beside.
I'd have to go so straight to press,
Or find myself forever "pled."
You mentioned too, a magazine,
They lean towards fiction more than truth
And I, "sh," I have ever been Inclined that way since early youth.
"Least said is soonest mended" but When stern occasion did command,
A magazine would blush and shut
As the noble "whoppers" I have planned.
That's all, I'm drawing near the end,
Accept my thanks, you've been so kind.
The other things you've mentioned, friend,
I'm not of them, and none combined.

FARM FIELD
GARDEN
FEEDING THE HOGS.
Rude Table Manners and the Waste of Food Prevented.
One of the greatest troubles with the hog is that he is so irrepressibly hog-gish. When you feed him he apparently feels it his inherent duty to crowd
every other hog as far and forcefully away from the feed as possible. When fed grain on the open floor he takes it upon himself to cover as much as he can, to keep nosing and pushing his fellows, often to his own loss of food, since more or less is wasted by his rude "table manners." When fed slop in the trough the biggest hog will invariably work his way through or over the jam and get his carcass into the trough, where he complacently stands lengthwise and if not satisfied with that lays himself down, gulping in his own and the smaller ones share until too full even to grunt, when he will stretch out for a snooze if the trough is big enough.
To avoid the waste of feed and to give all an equal chance to secure their share I have a number of schemes and devices, but I consider the one shown in the illustration to be as good as if not better than any, says a writer in Farm and Fireside.
The first requisite is a good sized,
well constructed trough built preferably in V shape, as shown by A. The width of the side boards will depend

Fertilizing Sweet Potatoes.
In fertilizing sweet potatoes in the Vineland (N. J.) district a formula is used which calls for about 3 per cent of ammonia, 8 per cent of phosphoric acid and 10 per cent of potash and costs from $28 to $30 a ton. The cost of fertilizing an acre is about $20. The fertilizer is scattered directly in the furrows and the rows ridged over it.

Home Grown Crops For the Dairy.
At the New Jersey experiment station home grown crops—alfalfa, crimson clover, oats and peas, cowpeas and soy beans—which are rich in protein have been utilized in the dairy at a greater profit than could have been realized by selling them at the market price.

Agricultural Schools For Girls.
In Belgium high schools of agricul-

Shot by Playmate.
There was a sad shooting affair in Mexico, Sunday afternoon, by which a young boy lost his life.

At 4.30, Russell Bishop, the eight year old son of Mrs. Ramsey, and Irving Kimball, the ten year old son of Don Kimball, went on guard to Don Babbs'.
The Kimball boy picked up a revolver which was lying on a shelf to examine it and accidentally pulled the trigger.
The bullet entered the temple of young Bishop and at six o'clock in the evening
he died.

A coroner was called but deemed an inquest unnecessary. Mr. Babbs had been using the revolver to kill a cat.

A little shaking up before breakfast arouses the vitality and consequently makes the appetite and digestion better.
That means better work done during the day. If a man can get away from work in time to take additional exercise during the afternoon, he will have a better appetite for the evening meal and more power to digest it. That will mean better sleep at night. A strong mind is certainly stronger and more enduring in a healthy body than in a sickly one.
The best way to keep the body healthy is to use it.

Walking is a means of exercise which is regaining popular favor.

Physician's Good Luck.
Dr. Hart's Fortunate Experience of Special Interest to Many in Norway.

The happiest man in New England today and one who is receiving congratulations from his friends, is Dr. Philip Z.
Hart, of Laconia, N. H.

Probably no physician is better known in all parts of the United States than Dr.
Hart, as he has been a great traveler and has known the best people wherever he has been. For years he has suffered with catarrh in its worst form.

Although he resorted to the latest scientific treatment, and consulted many of his brother physicians, Dr. Hart finally said, "I might just as well have thrown my money into the river for I grew worse and worse. It is really due to my catarrh in its worst form."

"The Doctor, in his emphatic way added 'Thank God that I did, for Hymol cured me completely. My wife and I will swear that Hymol cured me of the worst case of catarrh that I ever existed. I used to drop in the throat, which kept me awake a great deal. I raised thick phlegm and was in a horrible condition.
However, I am entirely cured, solely through the use of Hymol.'"

tells how she was entirely cured of ovarian troubles by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I heartily recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a Uterine Tonic and Regulator. I suffered for four years with irregularities and uterine troubles. No one but those who have experienced this dreadful agony can form any idea of the physical and mental misery those endure who are thus afflicted. Your Vegetable Compound cured me within three months. I was fully restored to health and strength, and now my periods are regular and painless.
What a blessing it is to be able to obtain such a remedy when so many doctors fail to help you. Lydia E.
Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is better than a doctor or medicine.
I ever had. Very truly yours, Miss

Funeral of R. O. Moulton. The funeral services of the late R. O. Moulton were conducted at his home, Sunday afternoon, Sept. 18, by Rev. F. E. Winn of North Bridgton. A very large concourse of friends and neighbors from far and near were in attendance. His oldest daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Jefferson of Wallaston, Mass., were present, also his only sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hill of Chichester, Mass. The beautiful floral tributes show the high esteem in which he was held. The Masonic ceremony at the Haskell cemetery was very impressive. By his death we feel that we have lost a valued townsman. His family have the deep sympathy of their many friends in this, their great bereavement.

Mrs. Stephen Ridlon is very feeble. Mrs. Crouse goes to Boston this week. Chas. H. Stearns is suffering from a broken collarbone. Mr. Dyer of Sebago is visiting his sister, Mrs. O. P. Saunders. Bennett's, the past week. Sullivan Farrington and sister, Mrs. Anna Jeffery of Stoughton, Mass., are visiting their aunt, Mrs. J. Minot Nevers.

Delegates from Bear Mt., Harrison, Fryeburg and Gorham Granges were at the reorganization of the Sweden Grange.

The Maine State Fair is now on.

BRYANT'S POND.

Pythian Sisterhood. Ex-Rep. Mrs. Clarence Jackson, P. O. Mrs. Josiah Moody, and Rep. Mrs. Edward Thompson of Evergreen Assembly, P. S. of this place, visited the Grand Lodge of Pythian Sisterhood, Sept. 28, which held its yearly session in Pythian Temple, Lewiston. A full and concise report of the work of the Grand Lodge will be read at the next meeting of Oct. 1st, by the Rep. Through connection with Maine State Board of Trade there were reduced rates of single fare from Bryant's Pond to Lewiston, Sept. 22 and 23, which was also intended by the railroad officials to meet the requirements of the Pythian Sisterhood, but on account of the slowness and inability to grasp a situation of certain parties, Evergreen Assembly got no benefit of the reduced rates, and as a result only three from here attended the Grand Lodge.

Bound to Succeed. Friends of Amy Thompson, daughter of E. Thompson, will be glad to know that she has met with good success in the business world since going from here to New York, last November. Though ever quick in mathematics, she early showed a liking for business, and when very young nothing pleased her so much as a desk well equipped for business and she could be trusted with any amount of money and sent to settle or collect accounts. She has held several situations since arriving in New York, each one an advance on the preceding one, and is now working in Hotel Park View, West 42 street, in which her brother-in-law, A. B. Atwood, is manager, and is filling his situation with much ability. She lives with her sister, in W. 120th street, Amsterdam Ave.

Corn Packing Done. Fernald's corn shop finished work here, Saturday. The pack this year was about 155,000 cans. The largest amount hauled in by any one was Emerson Billings' lot, which cut him out over $200 worth of corn. Goo. W. Q. Perham also had over $200 worth.

Edith Cushman is teaching the Gore school.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Powers lost their little child, Sunday. Funeral Tuesday afternoon.

Nearly all the summer company have left the place. Miss McKay and Miss Lloyd went home Wednesday, Sept. 21. I think they are the last to go.

Having looked in the Lovell items for two weeks for news of the reorganization of the Grange, No. 141, and failing to see any I will report it to the best of my ability. A meeting was called at the vestry of the Christian church, Center Lovell, on Tuesday evening, Sept. 13, to reorganize the Grange. It has been some years since it was in running order but it was thought best to reorganize instead of starting new. A number of the old members headed the list. There were 65 charter members from whom the following officers were chosen and duly installed by W. S. Larrabee, general deputy and Sec. Libby of Maine State Grange, Greenville Lord of Waterville was chosen Sec. pro tem and Sister Betty McAllister of Fryeburg Grange assisted in installing the lady officers.

W. M.—A. M. Pottle.
W. O.—O. C. Eastman.
W. L.—Lillian Mason.
W. S.—Arthur Fox.
W. A.—Alfred Lebaron.
W. C.—Roscoe Lebaron.
W. T.—G. A. Kimball.
W. S.—Greenville Lord.
W. G. R.—Frank A. Kenison.
W. L. S. S.—Mrs. Carrie Kimball.
W. J.—Mrs. Eliza Lord.
W. P.—Mrs. Daisy Stearns.
W. F.—Mrs. Lottie Eastman.

A vote was then taken to meet at the same place next week, the night to elect the executive and financial committee necessary for conducting the Grange. At second meeting, Sept. 20, the W. M. was not present on account of rain and Gen. Dep. Larrabee being present, he kindly filled the vacancy. Some of the officers already elected always serve on the different committees but the following were also elected:

Executive Committee—Mellen Eastman, John A. Fox, Merton Lord.
Financial Com.—Mrs. Carrie Kimball, Arthur Mason, F. A. Kenison.
Relief Com.—Mrs. J. W. Howe, Mrs. Owen Brown, Evelyn Lord.

A special committee was chosen consisting of Mellen Eastman, G. A. Kimball and John A. Fox, to see about providing a place for holding the meetings in the future and bringing it before the next Grange which it was voted to hold on Friday, Oct. 7, at 7:30, at the same place.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.

Mrs. R. T. Jordan Dead.
The deceased was the third daughter of the late Jacob Parsons of Norway and a sister of John Parsons. She had lived in Roslindale, Mass., for many years. She was stricken last January with a shock and has been an invalid ever since, although able after some weeks to get about the house, but never regaining the full use of her left arm and limb. Sept. 8, a second shock came and she was gradually failing till the end of Sept. 21.

Mrs. Jordan took a lively interest in the news from her old home, which she loved to visit. For many years she has been a subscriber to this paper.

A Lively Place.
The severe frosts, Wednesday and Thursday nights, were bad for the farmers that grow sweet corn. The H. F. Webb Co.'s factory's pack at Norway was more fortunate than some because the corn was earlier and much of it had been packed. What was in the fields that was fit to pack was hustled to the factory, and Saturday night it was practically all in.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday saw as busy a place at the Norway factory as was ever seen there, and the large plant was run to its full capacity to care for the corn. The farmers were busy too and the road leading to the factory was full of teams loaded with corn or returning to the fields for more. Those who had a large acreage to gather rushed their teams on the trot and the heavy carts rattled over the roads making a noise that sounded like distant thunder. The corn overflowed the husking shed, and it was dumped all about the yard. The huskers had all and more than they could do. Groups of them were before most every pile of corn but there were not quite enough huskers for the corn.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Osgood of Lowell, Mass., have visited Mrs. Osgood's brother, F. W. Sanborn, this week.

Dr. Harry Nevins of Portland has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Nevins, the past week. Dr. Nevins is soon to decide where he will locate for the practice of his profession. He has several places under consideration. The last year he has been doing hospital work in Portland.

A few of the Co. D boys, who went to the recent war maneuvers at Manassas, were so fatigued they have hardly recovered from their loss of sleep, long marches through the dust and heat, change of diet, etc. A greater part of company were glad of the experience in spite of the hard work, which apparently left them in better health than before they went, although they were necessarily tired when they reached home.

Mistakes in Paint.

The usual way to buy paint is to take the lowest price by the gallon. Mistake! the buyer loses by it; how much? Depends on the paint; it is so much a gallon, or so much a year. How much a gallon or year, do you think? As much, perhaps, as the total price of the paint. It may take twice the number of gallons. N. Avery, Delhi, N. Y., owns two houses both exactly alike. He painted one with Devco and one with another paint. Devco is gallons; other is 12. Go by the name: Devco. There's nothing cheaper. Go by the price; there's nothing dearer, except not painting at all. Poor paint is better than none.

What does it cost not to paint at all? Can't figure it out exactly; say a tenth of the building a year, besides loss. What is poor paint worth then? Don't know and don't care; you don't want it. Go by the name.

F. P. STONE.

Partridges Take to the Bush.
The season in which the small boys like to get out into the woods and the business man leaves his cares and troubles behind him in pursuit of the sky partridge and the unfamiliar woodcock, is upon us. The partridges who have been basking in the sunlight of the closed season have been given the tip and have taken to the tall timber away from their haunts of the summer past, in fear that one of the stray bullets might catch them unawares and convert them from the gay and happy bird of the forest to the toothsome partridge pie.

The business man, who immensely enjoys the sport, starts out with his game bag slung over his shoulder, his double-barreled gun in his hands and his faithful thoroughbred hunter at his heels. In contrast to him is the small boy, who has skipped school for the afternoon in order that he might commune with nature. Over his shoulder is the air rifle, his hands are in his pockets and as he starts out for the bush he whistles noisily to his little yellow cur, with one ear cheevered off and with a gaunt and hungry look that gives evidence that he is not the pet of the rich man. But for all this give us the small boy and his cur. Ten chances to one he knows better than his more modern equipped fellow sportsman, where the haunts of the ruffled grouse, the grey squirrels and the woodcocks are. Ten chances to one he will have a better time and the probability is the better luck.

Those who have gone out in search of these birds do not come back with the reports of much success for the season is little early for them as yet. The leaves impede the sight and a brace of birds may be quietly resting on a limb within a rod of the sportsman and he be as ignorant of the fact as though there

What the Facts Are About Russia

By Professor ARCHIBALD CARY COOLIDGE of Harvard

IN spite of the differences in temperament, belief, ways of looking at things, Russians are fundamentally not so different from ourselves and others. THEIR HISTORY AND THEIR POLICY CAN BE JUDGED FROM THEIR CONDITIONS. They are neither particularly better nor worse, cleverer nor stupider, than others, just as it is a mistake to think of their language as particularly hard. It is a little harder than German, but there are several much more difficult in Europe alone, and it is child's play compared to some Asiatic ones.

The second error is that Russian diplomacy is ALWAYS PARTICULARLY SKILLFUL and its diplomats wily, successful schemers. This is nonsense. The Russian diplomatic service has its clever men and its stupid ones. If they have shown tact and skill at times, not to say duplicity at others, they have frequently blundered. Nicholas I. blundered into the Crimean war; Russia's handling of Bulgaria was far less tactful than our own of Cuba under somewhat similar circumstances.

As to the current quarrel with Japan, one can accuse Russian diplomacy of arrogance, blindness, anything you will, but not SKILL. Russians themselves would strenuously deny any particular diplomatic skill.

THE RUSSIANS WERE VIRTUALLY UNPREPARED FOR THIS WAR, WHILE JAPAN HAS BEEN PREPARING FOR YEARS.

Another error which we make about many countries except our own is to talk as if they were one man. This is not true even in an autocracy. A FORCEFUL PRESIDENT may have more real control over affairs than A WEAK AUTOCRAT.

For instance, we say Russia promised to evacuate Manchuria, but never intended to keep the promise. What do we mean by Russia? The foreign minister who made the promise, or his imperial master, or Viceroy Alexieff, or who? Of late there has apparently been much conflict between opposing influences in the Russian government, and its consistency has suffered.

There is a public opinion in Russia which has asserted itself many times recently. It drove Alexander II. into war, as American public opinion did McKinley. THERE ARE EVEN ANTI-IMPERIALISTS, and a good many of them. Another common belief is that Russia is an aggressive power, always gaining and insatiable. It would be absurd to pretend that Russians are any better than other people in their dealings with their neighbors.

In the last century the possessions of Russia, leaving out Manchuria, were increased by something over 1,500,000 square miles. It is a notable showing, but during the same period the United States gained some 2,800,000 square miles, France 3,900,000 and Great Britain 10,000,000 square miles, or AN AREA LARGER THAN THE WHOLE EXTENT OF THE RUSSIAN EMPIRE TODAY.

The conquest of Siberia was like our winning of the west, of central Asia like that of the English in India. More than half the population of Russia lives today on territory that was hers before Peter the Great came to the throne, more than two centuries ago.

The immense increase of strength of Russia during the past century has come far more from the increase of her population and the development of her resources and creation of means of communication than it has from an extension of her frontiers. Distance is still her GREATEST weakness, especially in this war.

RUSSIA ALONE WITH CHINA COULD SHED HER ACQUISITIONS OF THE LAST HUNDRED YEARS AND LEAVE HER REAL STRENGTH

was not a partridge within ten miles of the place where he is passing. When the frosts take the leaves from the trees and leave them bare of their foliage then is the time to hunt the birds. In the morning you will find them out in some orchard, where the farmer has left a part of the apples on the trees, getting their breakfast off the frozen apples, and if the hunter doesn't make much noise he will be sure of getting a good shot.

The average gunner takes his game where and when he can get it but there are those who are sportsmen enough not to shoot at a bird at rest, preferring rather to take their game on the wing. Do not take it at all. It is needless to say, however, that these men are few and far between for the good die young. The woodcock and the partridges are not the only game birds that are being sought out by the gunners, for many enjoy the cool breeze of the early morning, when the wild ducks are feeding upon the frogs and bugs to be found in the marshes and bogs. These are harder to shoot than some of the other birds, but it is necessary for the gunner to be very low or else lose his shot entirely. There is more satisfaction in bringing in a brace of these birds, however, for the reason that they are not so plentiful and many go in search of them. Later in the fall the interest in the bird gunning will be banished to obscurity by the fun of the deer chase.

These animals are getting to be more plentiful in this region than heretofore and it has only been a few years since the close time for this game was lifted. Of course the region about is not anything like the big game region of the northern part of the State, but still one stands a good show of getting a shot at a deer if he happens to be out in the early morning in the vicinity where the deer are.—[Bridgton News.

MESSAGE TO FRATERNAL ORDERS

Interesting News from Cincinnati with Local Confirmation in Norway. The thousands of members of fraternal bodies in this State will be interested in the following message from John Theobald, a prominent Forester who lives at 1111 York Street, Cincinnati.

Mr. Theobald believes in living up to the motto of his organization, "Fraternal Love and Charity" and believes that he can do no more charitable act than to tell his experience in regaining health after years of suffering. Mr. Theobald writes, "For five years, I suffered with stomach troubles, having all the distress and misery that afflicts the human race. I could not enjoy eating, thinking of the suffering that would follow. My food did not digest, and although I took all kinds of medicines, I found nothing to help me until used Milroy's. I am now a cured man and believe that it made a permanent and complete cure."

Noyes Drug Store are local agents for Milroy's, nature's cure for dyspepsia. It is in form of small tablets and sells at retail. The remedy was made so many and such remarkable cures, amongst their customers, confirming Mr. Theobald's statement, that they will give their personal guarantee with every box they sell to refund the money if it does not cure.

Do not suffer longer. Here is a cure that costs you nothing, unless it restores health. They take all the risk and you do not have to pay a penny unless you feel that you have received much more than your money's worth.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Wouldn't any woman be happy, after years of backache suffering, from the misery, nights of unrest, the distress of urinary troubles, to find relief and cure?

No reason why any reader should suffer in the face of evidence.

Mrs. Anna A. Jackson, of East Front St., Traverse City, Mich., says: "For twenty years I was doctoring for kidney and liver trouble, but without benefit. Just before I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was almost paralyzed. I could hardly stand on my feet because of the numbness and lack of circulation. Had a knife been thrust into my kidneys the pain could not have been more intense. My sleep was disturbed by visions of distorted figures. The kidney secretions were amazingly irregular, and I was tortured with them, and always bloated. I used seven boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. The bloating subsided until I weighed 100 pounds less, could sleep like a child and was relieved of the pain and the irregularity of the kidney action. My circulation is good and I feel better in every way."

CONSUMPTION

Constancy; or a Legend.

Written for the Advertiser.

All day long on the rugged mountain,
Where the lone gull and cormorant stay,
A maiden stands in grief and anguish,
Weeping for him, her life away.
She weeps and prays in broken accents,
Still clinging to the love she spurned;
Oh, would some pitying angel aid her,
For the sad lesson must be learned.
All night beneath the silent heavens,
Where night birds croon in lonely call,
Where the deep hush of woodland quiet,
Is broken by a distant waterfall,
There she wrings her hands in anguish,
Out on that crazy steep alone,
With none save God overhead to heed it;
The throbbing heart, the bitter moan.
Faithless he—the old, old story,
When life was sweet and Heaven true;
Ah! full of the cloud and tempest,
Rob the heavens of its blue,
And full of when days seem fairest,
Twilight comes with damp and cold;
Off the chilling touch of Autumn
Blights the Summer's green and gold.
Therefore, always now, and ever,
A maiden's figure may be seen
Standing out on the rocky headland,
That overlooks the shade and sheen;
Strandling vines in the gully's twilight,
Standing on thro' the midnight hour;
Waiting still in the glare of mid-day
As a statue, wrought by Jehovah's power.
Do we not see that the love undying
Divine, and coming from above,
Is typified by this legend olden?
And Heaven is true; and God is love.

JENNIE E. SNOW KIMBALL.

It's Easiest and Quickest To Cut the Rope.

You know how it is with the mountain climbers. Two or more men start out to reach a certain point together, and to help each other. That is how men often start out in ordinary, every day life—closely united, expecting to finish the journey together and share success together.

The mountain climbers have a task that is difficult and a road that is slippery before them. To add to the safety of each they are tied together with a rope which goes around their waists.
The theory is that one man shall get a firm foothold, brace himself on the slippery surface with iron shod heels and Alpenstock, and faithfully hold on while the other man climbs up to where he is.
Thus tied together the men of the Alps,
and of other great mountains, scale precipices, cross chasms and conquer peaks that seem unconquerable.

But each of the men that thus start out to climb, tied together, so closely united, has in his pocket a sharp knife.
And that sharp knife is a strong reminder, too, of the ordinary lives we lead in our towns and villages. This sharp knife in the pocket of a mountain climber finds its counterpart in the innermost characters of each one of us as we struggle on for success, apparently united,
but ready, if need be, to drop a competitor down to destruction.

Occasionally in this mountain climbing something goes wrong. One man slips, loses his footing, and falls over the edge of a precipice. The men are still tied together, but one is safe and the other is within a few seconds of death.

The man who is safe is well braced,
and he can stand where he is for a while—but only for a while unless he shall rid himself of his friend's weight.
He could, perhaps, pull him up, but in the struggle to do this he might lose his footing, and that would mean instant destruction. The weight of the hanging body would drag him to death.

Then the sharp knife in the pocket does its work. The man that is safe and strong and well planted puts his hand to his pocket.
The man who has fallen and slipped knows what to expect when he sees the movement. There is a slash with the knife—the taut strands of the rope part.
One man has ended his race, and the other goes up on his journey. The world justifies him and he justifies himself, while the roads are slippery and precipices thousands of feet deep, sentiment is out of place and a sharp knife is necessary.

Sometimes it happens otherwise.
There are guides in the Alps to whom their friends point with pride as men would not cut a rope, though not to do so would seem to mean instant death.

And there are other guides buried at the bottom of chasms, their frozen bodies moving with the slow perpetual movement of the glaciers, that disappeared from life because they would not cut the rope that tied them to a friend.
They struggled with him to help him
and then went down.

These are the two classes of Alpine guides. The most numerous by far are those who do their best up to a certain point, and then cut the rope
when their own lives are in danger.
In our own prosaic lives, on the earth's level places, and in the history of the men that have lived here in the past, we find ourselves divided up pretty much as are those guides of the mountains.

Human nature usually bids us out the rope when it seems safer and easier to go it without the other man. We cut it, and, though we feel lonesome for a while, perhaps remorseful, and wish that we had made a better fight to get another or as well as ourselves to the top of the mountains, we gradually become reconciled and justify ourselves.

In the world's history the great majority of men have been rope cutters, and,
being the majority they are forgotten.
Here and there we find a man who would not cut a rope, or who succeeded in saving his friend or his country in spite of odds.

Unfortunately, more seldom we find men who would not cut the rope, and who went to his death in consequence,
for a cause that he thought more important than his life. Whenever a man dies because he refuses to abandon his post because he refuses to find a man that or betray his country, you find a man that would not cut the rope.

In the rare cases where principle overcome selfishness and the many are benefitted by the successful courage of one,
as in the case of a Cromwell, a Danton,
a Jefferson or a Washington, you find a man that would not cut the rope—that had his feet planted firmly enough to win in his struggle.

The history of man has been, and is to-day, a good deal like the history of the mountain climbers in the Alps.
Progress is difficult and dangerous. For one life lost in the struggles million have been lost in the struggles for liberty—religious, political and social.
For one brave man whose deeds are recorded among the Swiss villages millions equally brave have given up their lives in the great struggles of the past. Today, on a big scale, and on a small scale, we are confronted with the problem that confronts the man who is about to cut the rope.

Shall we stick to our friend and help him, or shall we stick to our cause and fight for it?
Or when the road gets slippery and dangerous shall we cut the rope and think only of ourselves?
That is the problem of to-day.
Progress and liberty depend upon the number of those that are willing to take their chances of disaster and defeat rather than to find cheap and easy safety in the abandonment of friends or principle, or both.

If you cut the ropes, think only of yourself, you will do only as the majority do, and become one of the majority who will be excused.

But if you hang on, refuse to cut loose from principle, and make your fight at whatever cost, you will at least have tried to be worthy of the comradeship of brave men who have gone before you, and you will find better friends and companions in your own thoughts than if you cut loose from everything except your own selfishness.

Charles Atherton Ingalls.

Charles A. Ingalls died in Los Angeles, Calif., Saturday, September 17, after an illness covering a long period.
Mr. Ingalls was the youngest son of Rowena Hills of Bethel and Robert Ingalls of Shelburne, and was born in Shelburne, June 11, 1839. He was educated in the public school and at Gould's academy, Bethel, and at Lancaster, N.
H., academy.

In 1858 he entered the employ of the Grand Trunk railway at Island Pond, and in 1860 became connected with the Canadian express company with headquarters in Montreal, with which company he remained till 1882. He was custom agent and broker at Port Huron, Mich., for one year, after which he removed to Tacoma, Wash., where he resided till two years ago, when he removed to Los Angeles, Calif., where he resided at the time of his death.

Mr. Ingalls had been in poor health for several years, but about two months ago his illness assumed a more serious aspect, and he gradually failed until the end came. He was tenderly cared for by his sister, Sarah R. Ingalls, who has made her home with him for many years, and who survives him. Mr. Ingalls was unmarried.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Wonders of Bird Migration.

What Becomes of the Chimney Swift in the Winter Months?

Who will solve the mystery of the chimney swift? It is one of the most familiar and most numerous of our birds but when it leaves the gulf coast on its annual migration it disappears apparently from the face of the earth and no man knows whither it goeth.
Dr. W. W. Cooke, in the Year Book of the Department of Agriculture for 1903, tells how the chimney swifts, with their troops of fledglings, drift slowly southward in a constant line, in tall chimneys, ward, lodging by night in other bands, until by the time the gulf coast is reached they have become an innumerable host. Then they disappear—drop absolutely out of sight. If they hibernated in mud, as was popularly believed of old, their obliterations could not be more complete. In the last week of March a joyful twittering far overhead announces their return, but where they spent the intervening five months is still their secret.

The amount of traveling done by some of our birds is astonishing. Dr. Cooke says that the common night hawk spends the summer in Alaska and the winter in Patagonia. The bobolink which is the race-bird of the middle states and the rice-bird of the south, winters on the waving pampas of southern Brazil. It covers seven hundred miles, from Cuba to the South American coast, in a single flight following a track not popular with other birds, which might be called the bobolink route.

Some of our shore birds appear to make traveling their chief occupation. The American golden plover arrives in the first week of June, in the bleak, wind-swept barren grounds of Alaska, above the arctic circle and far beyond the tree line, and, while the lakes are still icebound, hurriedly fashions a shabby little nest in the moss. By August it is in Labrador, where it stuffs itself with such quantities of crowberries that its flesh is actually stained by the dark purple juice. From Nova Scotia it strikes out west, and takes a direct course to the West Indies, 1600 miles away, finally reaching southern Brazil and the prairies of Argentina. Sixteen thousand miles does it traverse in order to spend two weeks on the arctic coast.

The choice of route and distance covered by a single flight are governed chiefly by food supply.

It is a Great Temptation

for grinders of paints to use cheap oils in place of Pure Linseed Oil. "Portland" Oil Colors, however, are ground in Linseed Oil which is always pure, for we do not buy or sell anything but Pure Linseed Oil. We make a complete assortment of Colors ground in oil. They are fine enough for the best fresco work, and being of great strength are most economical for house painters' use, as one pound will do the work of two of cheaper grades. Ask your dealer for PORTLAND OIL COLORS, if you want the best.

BUCKFIELD.

Former Buckfield Boys.

J. Laurin Clark of Bangor has recently visited his childhood home, looking hale and hearty. He has been train dispatcher for eight years, which gives evidence of faithful service. He informed me that he had recently met at the home of his parents in Liberty in a family gathering of parents and brothers, Morton and Crommett. They left this town a few years since. Crommett is on the Waterville Sentinel staff. Good people all.

Corn packing closed, Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Irish are visiting relatives in Auburn.

There were 86 tickets sold on Wednesday for the fair at Canton.

The late cold snap was the closing of vegetation. Mercury at 20 deg. Apples were frozen, spoiling Ben Davis, etc.

A. L. Dunn advises his large dairy stock, teams, hay and a large lot of farm machinery, making a clean sweep, on Oct. 22.

B. U. Allen, who has been visiting here, returned to his home in South Boston, Monday, taking his wife's mother, Mrs. Asa Atwood, along.

A young man coming home after a short absence was met by his sweet Marie on the sidewalk, and while exchanging kisses were apparently oblivious of blocking the procession.

The building craze has struck this town. Edwin Phinney has moved into his house. Chas. Bowen has his house boarded in, and Horace Murch has broken ground for his contemplated residence.

Dr. Caldwell and wife and J. A. Rawson and wife started for St. Louis and other points in the West, Monday. The doctor expects to be absent three weeks, while the Rawsons expect to extend their tarry to five weeks.

I have a plot of Hubbard squashes. On the end of one vine grew four squashes, one a pure Hubbard color, one a blue, one a lighter blue and one yellow. They grew so near each other that they touched. All others were of the Hubbard variety.

A. T. Cole informs me that on his Western trip through Canada and many states, Michigan and St. Louis in particular, he saw no drunken person until he boarded the P. & R. F. R. R. on his return, and this man was so drunk that the employees had to transfer him.

Next Friday night L. and S. society give a concert at the Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Brett were the guests of Robbins Plummer, a brother of Mrs. Brett.

Dr. and Mrs. Hamlin from Massachusetts are the expected guests of Mrs. Clara Noble.

The apple crop in this section is quite plentiful, distressingly so here and elsewhere the farmers fear.

Harold Kimball has been ill with neuralgia for several days requiring the services of a physician but is now better.

John Sanderson is with his sister, Mrs. Blanche Merrill. We understand that he has graduated from Dartmouth college.

The recent frosts have damaged corn to a great extent. Persons raising corn feel that they have sustained quite a loss excepting those more fortunate whose crops were fully matured.

The corn factory is a hindrance to the schools. Many scholars do not realize what they are losing by neglecting their education for a few extra pennies, that are soon and easily disposed of.

Mrs. A. S. Kimball of Norway is staying a short time with her aunt, Miss Billings, and her sister, Mrs. Clara Noble. Hon. A. S. Kimball has gone to California on business relating to the I. O. O. F.

The very interesting discourse at the Methodist church last Sunday was from Solomon's song, 5:3, "I have put off my coat; how shall I put it on? I have washed my feet; how shall I dandle them?"
